BIOGRAPHY

Slow is a 24-year-old Canadian singer, songwriter, and actor. His music offers a blend of urban Latin, pop, and is nuanced by trap, thus introducing Montreal's underground culture into his sounds. With his Hispanic roots, Slow crosses cultural barriers by offering tracks in French, English, and Spanish, making him a pioneer of a new musical genre. His hit "Ya Entendi" is a sensual bachata that has made waves on TikTok, attracting new listeners from around the world. Collaborating with numerous local artists, he has worked with well-known producer RuffSound, who has collaborated with artists such as Dua Lipa. Their track "Baila" ranked 98th on the Top 100 chart of Quebec radio. The Canadian singer showcases ingenuity with the sounds he creates, producing music that transcends genres, with youthful and vibrant melodies.

CE QUE DIT LA PRESSE

Mentions:

ICI Première | Il restera toujours la culture: Chronique de Tatiana Polovoy.
ICI Musique | Nouveaux sons: Mentions par Nicolas Ouellet

«A must-see. When we talk about the public's appetite for new TV, original stories, close to people, close to certain communities but not only, open to all Quebecers and with new faces, well, it fits 100% in there.»

Eugénie Lépine-Blondeau, ICI Première, Tout un matin.

«Ça prend pas la tchas à Papineau thus gives us a glimpse of the family in all its complexity, but also its beauty. Also noteworthy is the quality of the cast, composed of new faces like Raul Alejandro Valencia Lemus, Jaé Mac Lorin, and Samuel Robergeau in the roles of this father-son trio.»

Amélie Revert, Le Devoir.

«Jojo is a single father of two children whose mother has just died. He is portrayed by Alejandro Valencia Lemus who is so good and who touched me so much just with his gaze that it made me want to cry. There's something in his acting that is completely vulnerable and in which we are so captivated.»

Tatiana Polovoy, ICI Première, Il restera toujours la culture.
